

SASNET lecture on
SIKHISM AND GENDER

Wednesday December 8, 2004

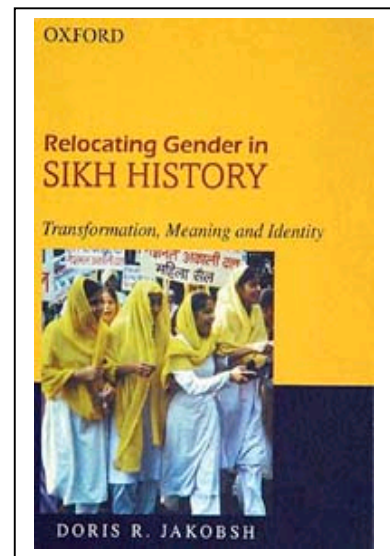

“Innovation or Invention? The Sikhs, Colonization,
Gender and the Feminization of Ritual”

Dr. Doris Jakobsh
University of Waterloo, Canada

Time: 4.15 pm

Venue: Room 438 at Centre for Theology and Religious Studies, Lund
University

Doris Jakobsh is Assistant Professor at the University of Waterloo, Canada, and teaches a variety of courses on women in Eastern religions and Sikhism. Her research interests focus on women in Sikh history and Sikh women’s ritual identities, particularly as they are forged on the WWW. Her most recent publications include Relocating Gender in Sikh History- Transformation, Meaning and Identity (OUP 2003). Jakobsh visits Sweden in connection with the Nordic conference ”Ritual Practices in Indian Religions and Contexts” held at Lund University December 9-11, 2004. See: www.teol.lu.se/indiskareligioner/conference04

WELCOME!

Lars Eklund and Staffan Lindberg, at Swedish South Asian Studies Network (SASNET).