

FOCUS ASIA

Media Cultures and Politics in Asia and Beyond

26 February

Media Cultures and Institutions: Asia in a Comparative Perspective

09.00-10.30
China's Media Transition in Comparative Perspective
Colin Sparks, University of Westminster

10.30-11.00 Coffee break

11.00-12.30
Journalistic Cultures in Asia and the World: China, Indonesia, and Global Comparative Evidence
Thomas Hanitzsch, University of Zurich

12.30-14.00 Lunch break

Democracy, Civil Society, and the Public Sphere: Perspectives on Old and New Media

14.00-15.30
Japan's Public Broadcasting System: An Instrument for National Interests or a Forum for Civil Society?
Kaori Hayashi, Tokyo University

15.30-16.00 Coffee break

16.00-17.30
Infotainment – Indian Style: Changing Contours of TV News in the World's Largest Democracy
Daya Thussu, University of Westminster

27 February

Democracy, Civil Society, and the Public Sphere: Perspectives on Old and New Media (continued)

09.00-10.30
Young Citizens + ICTs = Democracy?: Reflections from two European Research Projects
Tobias Olsson, Växjö University

10.30-11.00 Coffee break

11.00-12.30
Cyberspace and Civil Society: Internet Biographies in the Middle East
Jon W. Anderson, The Catholic University of America

12.30-14.00 Lunch break

Media Discourses on Global and Local Politics

14.00-15.30
Bound to Rise: Chinese Media Discourses on the Global Order
Chin-Chuan Lee, City University of Hong Kong

15.30-16.00 Coffee break

16.00-17.30
Media Perceptions and Perceptions of the Media: How Journalists and Politicians View Each Other in Post-transition Taiwan and South Korea
Gary Rawnsley, Leeds University

Location: Palaestra, Paradisgatan 2, Lund

The lectures are open to the public and entry is free of charge.

Welcome!

Arr: Centre for East and South-East Asian Studies in co-operation with:
Centre for Middle Eastern Studies and SASNET (Swedish South Asian Studies Network)

